Writing your first book can be scary; I know I was very afraid with my first one. The bigger fear is rejection and the time it takes for traditional publishers to respond to even a query letter (they are very busy people).

The publishing industry is changing, and more authors are turning toward self-publishing eBooks. That's what this book (course) is all about; writing and publishing yourself. I have added "course" to the title, as that is what it is. You will be answering questions and doing several exercises so you can make the most of the contents.

There are four modules to complete: writing, pricing, publishing and marketing. Each module will take you through a certain aspect of the process, and by the end of it all you should have successfully produced your very first eBook.
