Excerpt from Problems in the Law of Contracts: A Collection of Concrete Problems, Arranged for Study, Review, and Class-Room Discussion, in Connection With Case Books, Text-Books, or Lectures, With Reference Notes

It is believed that one of the greatest needs of law students is more thorough drill in the actual application of the authorities and principles of law which they are studying, to varied situations and sets of fact.

The aim of this little book is to offer a collection of concrete illustrative examples, examination questions, and practical problem cases for discussion, drill, and review. They are so arranged as to present in logical order the important distinctions and crucial issues of the Law of Contracts, condensed in a nutshell. Such citations and reference notes are appended as will guide the student to the authorities in the case book and elsewhere by which he may crack the shell and work out the solutions for himself, much as the lawyer has to do with actual cases in preparing briefs and legal opinions.

These problems may be used from day to day, in connection with the corresponding cases in the case book to compel careful thought and criticism in preparation for class-room discussion, or for review and drill after the student has covered a topic in the case book or text-book, or after he has pursued his entire course of study on the subject.
