America since 1945: The American Moment Harry Papasotiriou, Paul Levine

The period from 1945 to the present day may not constitute an American century, but it can be seen as the American Moment: the time when, for good or ill, the United States became the predominant political, military, economic and cultural power in the world. This revised and updated new edition introduces the historic and tumultuous developments in American politics, foreign policy, society and culture during this period. It includes coverage of key recent events, such as the:

- 2008 election of Barack Obama
- Global recession
- war in Iraq and Afghanistan
- rise of the internet
- transformation of American Society and Culture
- changing status of the US in the new millennium

Examining the American Moment in a global context, the authors emphasize the interaction between politics, society and culture. America Since 1945 encourages an awareness of how central currents in art, film, theatre, intellectual history and media have developed alongside an understanding of political, economic and social change.
